

Phase 2 Interaction Refinement Report

Darts & Pats: The Memory Corridor

This pass keeps The Memory Corridor as the exhibit spine, splits Follow the Strings into its own corkboard room, cleans up the no-score Editor game pool, and adds a compact Word Breeze for orientation without turning the experience into a dashboard or StoryMap.

Total archive records	616
Editor-eligible records	21
Withheld from Editor game	595
Filter pattern	\b(dart darts pat pats)\b, case-insensitive

Editor Table filter

The Editor pool now builds a challenge string from text_full, text, title, and summary, then excludes only game cards that match the whole-word regex. Those 595 records remain available everywhere else: archive drawers, the Memory Corridor, and Follow the Strings. The hidden challenge view withholds the original Dart/Pat badge, type field, source label, and metadata until the reveal state.

Follow the Strings

Follow the Strings is now a self-contained corkboard room. Selecting a theme recenters the board inside the room; Dart and Pat clippings open the existing reading drawer; related themes recenter the board without scrolling or filtering the corridor. The optional “Use this theme in Memory Corridor” control is the only action that deliberately sends the theme back to the corridor.

Word Breeze

Word Breeze is a compact strip of drifting terms from the active corridor record set. It responds to year/topic/class-window changes and opens a small local list when tapped, but it does not yank the visitor around the page or become a metrics panel.

Avoiding ESRI StoryMap conventions

The interface keeps physical exhibit metaphors: a Memory Rail, floor tiles, corkboard strings, clipped newspaper cards, drawers, and tactile labels. There are no numbered chapter dots, map-first layouts, large corporate content blocks, or standard sidebar navigation.

Next steps

Next refinement should focus on kiosk rehearsal: test on the actual touchscreen size, tune long-label wrapping, decide whether to generate the planned image assets, and add a short docent-facing QA checklist for reset timing, fullscreen behavior, and drawer readability from standing distance.

NO-SCORE INTERPRETIVE GAME

You be the Breeze editor

Read a hidden card, guess whether it was a Dart or Pat, then reveal how it appeared and where it fits in the exhibit.

595 archive cards are held out of this game because they name their own form; 595 are in the current corridor view.

To the JMU Orchestra for the free concert they offered to local elementary schools. The music was like magic. We loved the song "Mars." We also liked Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony." We liked how you had some people play the instruments individually. Sent in by Mandy Lambert, Wendy Driver and Mrs. Hilt's fourth grade class.

Streets, traffic & pedestrian safety
I found this, but that's... pedestrian had the right of way, Harrisonburg rules now at the time, pretty inconsistent, then even doing anything at all.

Streets, traffic & pedestrian safety
This may be a crazy thought, but are the main street crossing guards really meeting that long term goal? Not only does their schedule seem pretty inconsistent, they aren't doing anything at all.
